PRACTICAL HALACHA

The Nine Days

A person who usually shaves daily should refrain during the week of תשעה באב.

Cutting nails is permissible until the week of תשעה באב.

One should avoid lawsuits with gentiles during the Nine Days.

Objects of joy should not be purchased during the Nine Days, unless the price will increase.

Construction or any form of home decorating must be suspended during the Nine Days.

Flowers or plants should not be planted during the Nine Days.

One may not eat meat or drink wine during the Nine Days unless it is in the context of a סעודת מצוה or Shabbos.

One may not do laundry or send to the cleaners during the Nine Days, even if it will not be worn until after תשעה באב.

One may wash children's clothing during the Nine Days.

One may not wear freshly laundered clothing during the Nine Days. Clothing worn directly on the body to absorb perspiration may be changed.

One should not use freshly laundered linen, towels, or tablecloths during the Nine Days.

On Shabbos, one may wear freshly laundered clothing.

Bathing, washing, and swimming are prohibited during the Nine Days.

One may wash or bathe to remove dirt or perspiration.

Normal bathing on erev shabbos is permissible.

Good Shabbos,
Rabbi Cohen
